ENTHUSIASM WANTING

Condition of Country as to Crops,
Credit, Production Overshadowed

New London, Conn., June 11.—In an address today before the New York Bankers' Association, in annual convention here, Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, analyzed the business situation of the day, holding that it had become dependent on political rather than economic factors.

In part he accepted President Wilson's diagnosis of a "psychological"

"I believe," he said, "that the lack of confidence in the future, the state of pessimism that has been the result of the many phases of business, the disposition toward extreme conservatism, the lack of new plans for capital expenditures for railway improvement and business expansion, the industrial conquest, all have their roots in a pessimism of mind, rather than in the statistics of actual business data; but I am not certain that this state of mind is grounded in unfounded fears, that it is the result of pessimistic ghosts, that it is engendered by a popular apprehension concerning legislative tendencies and the trend of public opinion. "The obstacles in the way of busi-

He described the standards that used to prevail in the judging of the business future—statistics of production and distribution, condition of the market, and of credit, crop outlook, etc.

Attitude Changed.

"Now," he said, "the Congressional Record is crowding out of its place of importance the Chronicle. We watch executive and congressional actions rather than the comtroller's abstract to gauge the status of banking affairs. The attitude of mind of the interstate commerce commission has become more important than the statistics of railroad traffic. We read the totals of our foreign trade to earn the effect of changed tariff law, rather than that of trade tendencies. Reports of the attitude of mind of the attorney general vie in interest with the crop predictions of the secretary of agriculture. Investigations by bureaus, commissions or congress form a more important stature in gauging market outlook than do the plans for development or expansion formulated by the executive committees of corporations. Plans for development or expansion of railroads or business enterprises have indeed been heard of but little. The factors that we have lately in mind are those that are likely to determine what new laws are next to be passed; what is the prospect, not of crops, but of congressional action.

If such psychological factors could be taken into account for a moment and the old view taken, we would see looming large the prospect of a great agricultural yield, giving promise in some directions of bumper crops now almost assured.

Credit Satisfactory.

"We would see easy money here and abroad, and although we might not have money very cheaply, we

of a lack of profitable employment, still its present ease would promise that there would be no interference with increased business activity on the coast, there would be no loss.

We would note that we were embarked on the trial of a new banking system, about which—whatever points of disagreement there might be—there was the unanimous opinion that it would not be a factor to tend to ward inflation, and therefore that it will for some time to come be a factor likely to insure continued easy money.

We would find sound credit conditions in the position of the

"The industrial machine of the nation, in short, might be likened to a great steam engine, running with a load much lighter than its capacity, and ready, upon the turn of a valve, that would let in more steam, to respond efficiently to vastly greater requirements.

"A survey of concrete business conditions with such facts and totals as business statistics show today would, however, have been sufficient ground ten years ago to have predicted that we had straight ahead of us the possibility of a period of great expansion.

"What he asked is in the way of making a similar prediction now? We are told it is a psychological barrier, it is a state of mind—but truly it is not so much the state of mind of the public at large—the state of mind which we call public opinion, and which through our political machinery

Current of Laws.
 "I do not want to be understood as believing that this state of the public mind, this quality of public opinion is altogether wrong. The basis that is back of the demand for legislative restriction and control of business I believe to be in large measure made up of sound economic facts. The development of industrialism within our lifetime has been of such a revolutionary character as naturally and rightly to create a demand for a boy of controlling laws, such as were never dreamed of by persons of the legislative type in accordance with sound economic principles; formulated with justice and sincere human sympathy.

"I believe if business men will get themselves into a state of mind where they view conditions broadly, with a historical and social sense, rather than only from their individual point of view, they will apprehend better the direction in which the whole current of political thought is flowing, and will feel less impatience with this legislative movement, and vastly less

"It seems to me time that we recognized, and caught step with this wider spirit, and then endeavor to direct the movements, which finds a

AUDIENCE OF THREE THOUSAND VIEWS SPECTACLE IN COURT HOUSE PARK.

MANY PRETTY DANCES

High School Girls in Graceful Exercises Provoke Applause—Present Diplomas Tonight.

Three thousand spectators crowded about the natural amphitheatre in the upper end of the court house park on Wednesday afternoon for the fourth annual pageant and May pole presented by the girls of the high school physical culture classes under the able direction of Miss Alice Abell, their instructor.

To the inspiring music played by the high school orchestra the young ladies, in groups and in pairs, danced and gambled, glided and frolicked, excited exultation, grace, presenting a series of attractive scenes which were further enhanced by the tasteful costumes and beautiful stage setting of nature's own greenery.

Following the queen's procession, started, followed by the crowning of the queen, Miss Beattie Buell, her attendants were the Misses Dorothy Maclean, Mary Butters, Gladys Franklin and Marjorie White.

The parade of the afternoon featured the two diminutive seniors, Marshall Davis and Frank Kennedy, who also guarded the May pole while the young ladies were engaged in dancing it.

A pretty grand march by high school girls was followed by a charming scarf dance by a dozen girls from the advanced gym class.

The costumes for this dance were especially attractive, each participant being clad in a beautiful colored scarf that fluttered and waved in the rhythm of the dance.

The waltz dance by first section freshmen girls came next, and proved to be an especially difficult glide to handle. Fourteen girls dressed in blue and white, Dutch costumes, the majority of them having blonde hair, pictured the Dutch maidens in a realistic manner. Their peculiar hop in the Dutch dance was characteristic of the Dutch dance.

The famous minuet, which has been most popular in the last three pageants given in this city and which is called the "Queen of American Dances," followed the Dutch dance, and was presented most capably by senior girls. Dressed in colonial style costumes, the maidens went through graceful steps in a most engaging fashion.

A natty and interesting dance came next, with a Russian name, and given by first section freshmen girls. Following it came another Russian glide called the Polonaise, in which the arm movements represent the gentlemen inviting the lady to dance with him, and her acceptance of the invitation. About twenty-eight girls took part in this exercise.

The remainder of the program was equally as good as the first, and was given as follows:

This dance shows in pantomime the story of a gentleman inviting two ladies to a party and attentive to both of them.

Sailors' Horn Pipe. Advanced gymnasium class. This is the most popular of the English dances.

The fine line dance is typical of aesthetic dancing in America. Dance of the Brownies and Fairies. Sixteen Freshmen girls. The fairies and elves are supposed to indulge in midnight revels on the green.

Spanish Waltz. Advanced gymnasium class. This is typical of the graceful Spanish dances.

Highland Fling. Second section freshmen. The Highland Fling is the true national dance of Scotland.

Popples. Advanced gymnasium class. This is an example of the aesthetic waltz.

Winding of the May Pole. Senior girls. The winding of the May Pole was perhaps the prettiest number of the afternoon's program. This feature was performed by some thirty girls without an error, and with requisite grace and charm. The pole was decorated in pink and white.

The music for the various numbers was played most satisfactorily by the high school orchestra, which has given much careful attention to the preparation of the difficult pieces for the pageant. The selections for each of the folk dances were typical of the music of the particular nationality and the perfect time kept by the orchestra was an important factor in the success of the dancing.

The Misses Emily Sewell, conductor of the orchestra, and Alice Abell, instructor of the pageant, deserve the bulk of the credit, for their time spent in preparing so unique and successful an entertainment.

Immediately following the May pole dance, the best dancers, one from each class, were selected. The winners were, Freshmen, Renette Smith; Sophomore, Manilla Powers; Junior, Marion Fletcher; Senior, Marguerite Powers.

Exactly 108 girls participated in the pageant yesterday, all of them marching in the grand march with the exception of the May Queen and her attendants.

Present Diplomas Tonight. This evening, beginning at eight o'clock, the regular graduation exercises followed by the presentation of diplomas will be held. The exercises will be shorter than previous third day programs, but will take in all of the features, including the presentation of the class token, singing of the class song, and the annual valedictory address. Following is the program:

Music. High school orchestra. "Glimpses of Life at the Panama Canal." Herbert Brownell. "Significance of the Panama Canal." Willard Hield.

"Affairs in Mexico." James Roberty. Music. High school orchestra. High Power Electro Magnet. Marshall Davis and Walter Craig. Presentation of Class Token.

Valedictory Address. Victor Hemming. Presentation of Diplomas. Alvin Gesteland.

Song. Dr. S. B. Buckmaster. Song. Composed by Lorene Brownman and song by entire graduating class.

Fountain of Cheerfulness. Be cheerful; do not brood over fond hopes unrealized, until a chain, link by link, is fastened on each thought and wound round the heart. form in new or improved legislation.

"We have heard much of the desirability of not mixing politics and business. Why should we not mix politics and business? What greater duty have you to perform than to give the best you have of wisdom and judgment to the direction of political currents; and to give wisdom and judgment effectively, not merely to stand aside in the role of dissatisfied critics, but rather by getting truly and effectively into the organization and machinery of political life?"

"Today business is practically unrepresented in congress. Wealth, even success, is felt so to militate against a man in public life as practically to exclude him from preferment. While I would urge business men more and more to recognize the rights of others, would urge them quite as strongly justly to appreciate their own rights and to see that others recognize them."

We have no reason to be ashamed of being business men; we have great reason to be proud of it. We have that right, and it will be far better for this country as a whole if we exercise it by presenting intelligent and able representation of business interests in congress. I believe that business men should insist upon that; should organize to accomplish it.

"I would so organize the business men of the whole country that the men of the whole country might be held up in their true light to the public. I would open up into the district of a demagogue and either defeat him or prove that the public of that district would be represented by a known demagogue."

"The conduct of business is vestly more ethical than the public believes it to be. Our task is to inform the public of the truth, and when that is done, I, for one, will trust the public to reach an honest conclusion, but if we are to have a public truly informed about business matters, business men must make united efforts to that end."

TALES OF HARDSHIP TOLD BY REFUGEES

Missionaries Who Make Escape From Western Mexico Have Thrilling Experiences.

The quartette of American Board workers in Guadalajara, Mexico, were going quietly about their work of teaching, preaching, and visiting in the city on April 2, when a message was received from the board's headquarters advising withdrawal. They were loth to go; everything seemed peaceful and safe. But "orders is orders," even when couched in the form of advice. So the four, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Fritts, Miss Alice Gleason and Miss Lora Smith, after hurried preparations, caught a train for Manzanillo, on the West Coast. They expected to be able, there, to take a steamer for California or at least to find some provision for the safety of the refugees who were gathering from various quarters.

The journey down to Manzanillo was not especially unpleasant, much smiles and hard words were freely thrown at the missionaries. "But," as one of the young ladies said, "we are quite used to having stones thrown at us because we are Protestants, and a few more didn't matter."

When they reached the coast, however, perplexities began. There was no steamer service. The United States could not send a ship for them because, in the indeterminate relations existing between the two countries, it might have been considered an act of war. Furthermore the Mexican crowd freely asserted that if an American warship showed itself off Manzanillo the American citizens there would be "cut into little bits." No comfortable accommodations could be found; and for any food or necessities the price charged was prohibitive. The missionaries' pocketbooks were not on a war basis, and very soon they had spent all their money and had been relieved of any superfluous baggage.

Prospects were pretty black when the English captain of a tramp steamer came along. He had brought over to Mexico a shipload of Chinese, but was not allowed to land them, and was preparing to take them back to China (or elsewhere). He had no passenger accommodations, only the coarsest food, very little water, a scrub crew, and a slow, dirty ship. But it was a ship, and Captain Davidson said he couldn't go off and leave the crowd in that plight. So after the arrival of one other trainload of refugees the whole party, some 250 in all, were taken on board the steamer.

San Diego was the nearest United States port, and the journey took seven days. The Chinese, for various reasons, had full possession below decks, and the Americans slept, ate (oatmeal, bread and coffee), and stood on chairs for such a number.

When they reached San Diego the money pinch began again; but the railroad company, through the kindness of those who had nothing and could not get cash from friends that they would be furnished with second class transportation across the continent, and this was given in many cases.

It is, we believe, the first time in the history of the American Board that all of its staff has been withdrawn from a country, certainly from a country with which the United States was not at war.

The message which was sent to the various stations in Mexico read: "Dr. Barton advises missionaries to go to the border." In repeating the cable, in one instance, the wires must have got hot, for the amazed recipient read: "Dr. Barton advises missionaries to go to thunder." Fortunately a correct interpretation was reached before any irretraceable steps were taken.

When the Tenor Fainted. "I seek for thee in every flower," a tenor solo, had been selected by the visitor from the city who was to sing at the village concert. Being asked what he was going to sing, he wrote that he had chosen "I seek for thee" (in A flat). In the program it accordingly appeared as: "Song, 'I Seek for Thee in a Flat'."

History of Baseball. While the origin of baseball is a disputed question, the first real game on record was played at Hoboken, N. Y., the same year that Texas was taken into the Union. The Knickerbocker Baseball club drew up the first real set of rules at that time. Organized baseball, however, is a development since the Civil war. The National league was not formed until 1875.

KANSAS LAND CASE PROMISES TO BE AN INTERESTING TRIAL

Suit Filed in Circuit Court by S. C. Hull Creates Considerable Talk.

That the civil action brought by S. C. Hull of Milton Junction against several Rock county real estate men to obtain damages for an alleged fraudulent deal in Kansas land, will develop into a most sensational case is evidenced by the amount of talk, pro and con, the action that is heard on the streets. The story of the suit published in the Gazette recently, was taken from the complaint on file in the circuit court and merely stated one side of the action. The merits of the case are not touched on as the action will not come up until the October term of court and the answer to the complaint will not be filed for some days. There is much discussion as to what line the defense will take.

Phil Doherty, Jr., one of the defendants in the action, has handed the Gazette the following signed statement for which he asks publication. Mr. Doherty takes the stand that he has been unjustly accused of attempting to defraud Mr. Hull and says: "I have been unjustly accused of being a party to an attempt to defraud S. C. Hull of Milton Junction out of a large sum of money and I desire to state a few plain facts relative to the matter."

First, S. C. Hull is not a farmer as stated in the article published but according to his own representation to me, is a real estate dealer and land speculator and also conducts an implement store at Milton Junction.

Second, that during a conversation between Mr. Hull and myself on November 21st, 1913, the name of Mr. Kapke was mentioned as the owner of 320 acres of land in Kansas and that he had offered to sell it to me for $40 per acre prior to this time.

Mr. Hull suggested he might trade for it and I told him that I would not be surprised if he could do so. He became interested and made arrangements for me to take him out to Mr. Kapke's place and introduce him and I consented to do so.

Third, that on November 22nd, Mr. Hull came to Janesville early in the morning and had with him a large quantity of what he called commercial paper, mostly second mortgages and equities on land in different parts of the country, I believe. These he told me he intended to trade with Kapke as part payment for the Kansas land. He instructed me to permit him to do the talking, as he had a great deal more experience in this line than I.

We drove to the Kapke farm and I introduced Hull to Kapke and then kept quiet. Most of their conversation was relative to the value of the "commercial" paper, not as to the value of the land. Hull seemed to be familiar with Kansas land and stated he and his father had dealt considerably in Kansas land. About noon they came to an agreement and Mr. Hull drew up the contract in his own hand and on his own contract blank and it was signed by Kapke and his wife, with myself and a neighbor who happened in, as witnesses.

F. W. Fisher, I believe, was acting as Kapke's attorney, and Ernest Krantz was at that time a perfect stranger to me. I know positively that Charles E. Sweeney and Thomas Donnelly had nothing to do with the deal at all, excepting that Sweeney held a mortgage on the land. This is a plain statement of the case and I never told Hull he could sell the land for fifty dollars per acre, but he seemed anxious to exchange his "commercial" paper for something tangible.

Signed, PHIL DOHERTY, JR.

Lamb Waited Long for Success. Charles Lamb's discovery of his genius was as nearly accidental as might be. When he left school it was necessary for him to take a clerkship and support the family. He wrote jokes for the papers and received for them the munificent sum of 12 cents apiece. Many experiments in authorship proved unsuccessful among them a farce which was hissed off the stage the first night. It was not until he was forty-five years of age that the first "Essay of Elia" appeared.

Equal suffrage and woman's dress are prominent questions before the twentieth biennial conference of the General Federation of Women's Clubs now being held in Chicago. Among the well known club women at the conference are Mrs. William E. Andrews of Washington, D. C., director of the American Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Harry L. over suffrage that, it was reported, might be offered to the convention at any moment.

Leaders of the suffrage wing excitedly over the outburst of applause that last night greeted Miss Jane Addams when she made the first statement for suffrage to be heard after the convention was opened.

"Without the franchise," she declared, "women are suddenly put out of the game—the game played all over the world by statesmen who at this moment are trying to transfer the new social sympathy into political action."

The applause that seemed to be general all over the floor and gallery, echoed from the stage where the leaders clapped and waved their handkerchiefs.

"Women's clubs," she continued, "are a manifestation of the efforts for liberty and culture. The Federation of Women's Clubs is a most important factor in disseminating social sympathy and social information."

Undecided.
We may well be astonished at the death certificate recently submitted by a native doctor at an inquest in far-away India. "I think she died or lost her life for want of food, or on account of starvation and perhaps for other things of her comfortables, and most probably she died by 'overing'."

ROUGH ON BRYAN.
The Chicago Record-Herald takes William Jennings Bryan severely to task for his Colombian treaty and the United States senate for passing it. It is not surprising that the Colombian congress offers its acceptance of the treaty. The Record-Herald has the following to say in regard to the matter:

"The Colombian congress has ratified Mr. Bryan's treaty of Bogota. That was to be expected. There are just 10,000 reasons why the Colombian congress should.

"The one is the apology which the United States makes in this precious document to the memory of the Bogota blackmailers of 1903 and for giving the Panama canal in spite of them. The other 25,000,000 are the $25,000,000 which the United States is to pay to Colombia, without a sign of 'value received,' but just as a tangible evidence of the sincerity of our apology.

"It is to be feared, however, that the mouths of Colombian patriots are watering in vain for that $25,000,000 and that the manes of those high-souled statesmen whom President Roosevelt dealt with as blackmailers ought to be will remain unappeased. It is simply inconceivable that the American senate should be brought to consent to a proceeding so shameful as the ratification of this treaty.

"The ineptitude of Mr. Bryan's grape juice diplomacy has been exhibited both in the making of this treaty and in not withdrawing it on some excuse or other but letting it go to ratification at Bogota. Mr. Bryan does not seem to know when to stop blundering. His intellects are truly bourbonic. He learns nothing and forgets everything.

"The roar of indignation that went up from the whole country when the terms of the treaty of Bogota were known should have shown Mr. Bryan his blunder. He had dared lay the compact formally before the senate. If he had the diplomatic capacity of a school boy he would have stopped the whole irritating business somehow and long ago.

"As for ratifying this treaty, we might as well fresco the Gaton locks with the inscription in letters fifty feet high:

"Stolen property."

NOT REALLY HUNGRY.
Representative Humphrey of Washington waxed facetious in the house the other day when he said: "The 2,000,000 unemployed men in this country are not hungry; they merely imagine they are," attacking President Wilson's statement that business unrest merely is "psychological."

"According to the president, what the nation needs is not prosperity; it is a state of mind," he said. "We need to take the faith cure."

"Surely this country is reaping the fruits of rule by a dreamer, a theorist and an impractical and intellectual man. Each day our imports are more and our exports are less than they have ever been before. During the last two months the balance was $49,000,000 in favor of the foreigner.

"Business in this country has decreased more than $1,000,000 every hour that Woodrow Wilson has been in the White House. Factories are closed, millions are out of work, business is stagnated, and yet the president tells business men that the conditions are 'psychological.'

"He proposes as a cure more legislation. We are to be kept here all summer to pass more laws to strangle what little business there is left. There is one consolation while we star here in session at the president's demand and kill business we are also killing the democratic party."

It is amusing to learn that the Cincinnati Construction company, which planned to construct an interurban between Janesville and Madison some years ago, and then was supposed to have died a natural death, has come to life again and is seeking to block a new organization that wants a certificate from the state railway commission to build the road between the two cities. There has been so much paper talk on interurbans that even the most optimistic will want to see cars actually running between the two cities before they will believe the word of promoters again.

Uncle Sam has chirped up considerably since he learned that the largest crop of wheat the United States has ever grown is nearly ready for harvest. The next thing to do is to get men to harvest it and cars to ship it in. With the lack of employment existing as it does the labor question should be solved and it is up to the railroads now.

Niagara Falls continues to flow on with unabated vigor while the A-B-C mediators continue to deliberate on the Canadian side of the line what to do with Mexico. Meanwhile Bryan continues his vaudeville performances and Huerta talks about resigning, and Carranza establishes a new government and imports arms and ammunition. It is a merry old world after all.

It is most interesting to note that the farmers of Rock county are taking interest in the Janesville fair project and subscribing liberally for stock. This assures its success as a general county affair. With Evansville holding its annual county fair, Beloit with a fair, and the Janesville fair, this section of the state is well taken care of.

The old line stalwart organization is taking on form again, according to dispatches from Milwaukee. While there is a county convention here on Saturday next to elect delegates to the state convention called by a few of the old-time leaders, it is doubtful if many others than the old wheel horses of former days will be in attendance, and many of these will be missed.

Greece resents the report of the Carnegie peace committee as to atrocities in the recent war in the Balkans. In fact it lays all the blame on the Bulgars whom they say are butchers, and just to prove their statements they will probably go to war with Bulgaria and slaughter a few thousand more to demonstrate the truth of their statement.

The women's clubs organization in session in Chicago are hammering away despite these hot days, on the question of suffrage. Before it is all over there is going to be some sort of a declaration of freedom signed that will surprise poor, simple men when the various members return home.

The lure of the northern woods is already attracting fishermen and others who seek cool retreats from the heated summer days. The twang of the reel as it whirls out and the flop of the fishy denizens of the deep, is music in the ear of the average man as he slaves in the office and dreams of forbidden joys.

The average small boy has it all figured out. One more day of school and then vacation. Two cruises, a Fourth of July and a fair week all before school opens again in the fall. No wonder he is restless.

There should be no hesitation on the part of any citizen to subscribe liberally towards the stock for the new factory that men interested in the growth and prosperity of the city are seeking to bring here.

On The Spur of The Moment

My Folding Bed.
Oh, how I love my folding bed,
I wake up standing on my head.
I've had it now for many a day
And I have learned to sleep that way.
It is a pessimistic couch
Which seems to harbor one deep Grouch.

Though to make friends with it I've tried,
It shuts its mouth with me inside.
I leap into its bosom vast
And hope that leap is not my last.
I wake up every morn, all right,
Although I'm squeezed up pretty tight.

But still, I think it's one safe bet
That folding bed will get me yet.

Chicago, Ill., June 8.—Victorious Mexican troops under General Sizer completely occupied Chicago, one of the principal lake ports, today, and acquired much loot. There was not much fighting. ## NAMES HONORED IN CANADA

Proposed Memorial to Parkman and Champlain Brings Strong Words of Commendation.

A Parkman and Champlain memorial at Ottawa is to be one of the symbols of the Anglo-American peace celebration.

Nothing could be more graceful and appropriate. Though Parkman and Champlain lived 250 years apart, their names are linked imperishably, and are written in letters of gold in the annals of this country.

Champlain made Canadian history; Parkman wrote it; Champlain wrought the deeds; Parkman immortalized them. It is fitting that they should dwell together, in bronze or marble, in the capital of the country which claimed their genius, if not their birth.

The fact that Parkman was an American harmonizes with the spirit of the peace celebration. His memorial, like his work, will testify to the common inheritance of the British, the Canadian and the American peoples. It will appeal also to the French-Canadians, for Parkman dedicated his life to telling the story of the French regime in Canada. And what an enthralling, inspiring story he wrote! On his splendid canvas, vivid with all the colors of romance and adventure, no figure stands out so gloriously as that of Champlain. To the memory of Champlain and Parkman—both heroes, for one fought the wilderness, the other waged a lifelong warfare against bodily infirmity—all Canadians should pay homage.—Quebec Chronicle.

Big Tax on Woman's Estate.

It rarely happens in Great Britain that a woman has the disposal at her death of more than $5,000,000, but the eighth millionaire estate to be probated during the present financial year is that of a Miss Easton of Felling in Durham and Layton Manor in Yorkshire, who died at the age of ninety-five. Her estate is valued for probate at $5,398,900. The duties on this will amount to more than $1,050,000.

The only other cases recorded in recent years of women who disposed at their death of estates over $5,000,000 in value are Mrs. Rylands, widow of a Manchester warehouse owner, who left $17,243,400; Mrs. Lewis-Hill, wife of Captain Lewis-Hill and widow of Sam Lewis, the famous West end money lender, who left $5,759,865; Baroness von Hirsch, who left $30,000,000; Mrs. Alexandra Ralli, who left $5,059,710, and Miss Ellen Morrison, who left $11,739,645.

They will talk every day, visiting many towns in several middle western states.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give the Hundred Dollars reward for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh of the Eustachian Tube, if you cannot be cured by Catarrh.

No Opportunity of Dipping Spoons Into It.

In restaurants and lunchrooms which are frequented by a more or less promiscuous class of people some of the patrons object to the habit of some of the others thrusting their spoons into the sugar bowl, particularly as many of them are thoughtless enough to put the spoon in their mouth before taking their quota of sugar. The new sugar bowl shown in the accompanying cut is built on the lines of a carafe. It is filled from the bottom and the sugar is taken from the top by means of a little device which also permits of the contents being abstracted in somewhat limited quantities while also protecting it from contamination either from the air or from the careless habits of the patrons of the place. The sanitary sugar bowl was recently granted a patent.

TEACHERS' CALLING GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

DR. S. T. KIDDER GIVES ADDRESS AT TRAINING SCHOOL GRADUATION.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED

Thirteen Prospective Teachers for Rock County Schools Receive Certificates at Today's Exercises.

"The High Calling of the Teacher" was the subject of the commencement address of Dr. S. T. Kidder of the Congregational church to the students of the graduating class of the Rock county teachers' training at the Christ church hall this morning. The speaker emphasized in fervent manner the richness of opportunity which is presented to those who are entrusted with the charge of instructing the young.

Thirteen young women received diplomas which signify their preparation for the work of teachers in the rural schools of Rock county. The certificates were presented by Superintendent O. D. Antisdel, who urged the graduates to remain true to the ideals and noble principles which have been held up during their course of training as the goal to be achieved.

Those who were graduated today are: Misses Margaret Arneson, Josephine Barrett, Frances Byrne, Marie Dolson, Zella Kealy, Katherine Knight, Hazel Logan, Mary Madden, Alice Smith, Pearl Tramballe and Ruth Tramballe.

"Twenty centuries ago," said Dr. Kidder, in opening his address, "Jesus, the Nazarene, one day took little children in his arms and blessed them, and said: 'Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for such is the kingdom of heaven.' It was a significant act, and its impulse and suggestion has outlived the ages and inspired the modern world."

"The kingdom of heaven means: I understand all things—yes, and all persons—that are good and true and helpful and wise and great and strong and beautiful in this world and all other worlds. And such is the young lives, it all belongs. It is their natural heritage, their birthright."

And ever since that saying of old has been the teachers' broadening, deepening task and divine privilege to help the child to grasp and hold and wisely use this birthright; to lead the child, the boy and the girl, with open eyes to see and know and use to know how to use to their own and world's advantage, the things and the people, living and dead, that are true and beautiful and good and wise and strong and great and helpful and so to become themselves beautiful and good and true and strong and wise and helpful—even truer, greater, better, stronger, more beautiful in body and soul than any who have lived before."

"It is a high and holy task, insuring a vastly better world. If all this is in the normal life of human development it becomes the teacher's vast function to aid such development in accomplishing not only the survival of the fittest, but so far as possible the survival, may the victorious advancement and even transformation of the seemingly unfit."

Continuing, Dr. Kidder laid stress on some of the details of this high calling. It offers the opportunity to touch life at its springs and to direct it at its very beginnings; it gives the opportunity to co-ordinate the physical, mental and moral life of the child, and to reinforce the greatest of the world's institutions, the home, the state, the school which in the United States is fostered and maintained by the state government.

The speaker emphasized particularly the importance of personality as a requisite for the teacher who expects to inspire the young to intellectual endeavor. To encourage high aspirations and purposes in the minds of the boys and girls requires a strong character on the part of the teacher whose example is far-reaching.

INCENDIARY FAILS TO FIRE RESIDENCE

Neighbors Discover Attempt to Set Fire to Empty House on Walnut Street in Time to Save House.

An attempt to set fire to a house owned by Mrs. Abbie Schumaker, on the corner of Walnut and Galena streets, about nine o'clock last night, was frustrated by Charles Butler and another neighbor, who extinguished the flames before any damage was caused.

The house has been unoccupied for three or four weeks. At nine o'clock last night members of the Butler family, who reside in an adjoining house, 507 South Walnut street, were attracted by flames starting in the kitchen of the Schumaker place.

One corner of the room kerosene had been sprinkled over the floor and an empty can was left behind by the person who tried to fire the house.

The police were called, but no trace of the culprit could be found and no one was seen to enter or leave the place.

Mr. Parker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parker of La Prairie.

The home was beautifully decorated in pink and white flowers. After the ceremony a luncheon was served. The young people have grown up in this city and have many friends who attend congratulations.

THIEF RAIDS COOP OF PRIZE CHICKENS

Eleven Chickens Stolen From O'Neill Residence. Revolver Shots.

Eleven high bred chickens belonging to Charles O'Neill, who resides on Fremont street, were stolen last night, and seven more, or the entire flock, would have done the same, had the eleven did, only the thief was disturbed in his efforts to carry away the contents of the coop.

Two revolver shots, which were aimed in the general direction of the coop.

About ten-thirty last night a loud noise awakened Miss O'Neill, who was under the impression thieves were trying to break into the residence.

On the chicken coop, the thief was prying open the door and the noise of the prize fowls convinced Miss O'Neill that it was time for action.

Two revolver shots were fired out the door and the thief made good his escape, the chickens safely tucked in his bag. The police were called, but the thief had escaped to the tall timbers.

THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY.

C. H. Rurey, formerly connected with school instruction in Chicago is in the city in the interest of "The Book of Knowledge," the children's encyclopedia published by the Grolier Society of New York.

Many of the public schools are placing these volumes in their libraries and there are a number of Janesville people who have a set of these books and who have given Mr. Rurey strong endorsement.

It is a wonderful children's library and gives them illustrated information on every subject imaginable in a simple lucid manner. One gentleman said of the set, "Every child should have a copy of this little four-year-old pulls one of the volumes at random from the case, and together we roam through the worlds of fact, fancy and fiction."

THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

By Edward Everett Hale

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Mary Roberts Rinehart and Owen Johnson was "The Man Without a Country," by Edward Everett Hale. His works are published by Little, Brown & Co.

PART I.

PHILIP NOLAN was as fine a young officer as there was in the "Legion of the West," as the western division of our army was then called. When Aaron Burr made his first dashing expedition down to New Orleans in 1805 at Fort Mastic or somewhere above on the river he met, as the devil would have it, this gay, dashing, bright young fellow at some dinner party. I think Burr marked him, talked to him, walked with him, took him a day or two's voyage in his flatboat and, in short, fascinated him. For the next year barrack life was very tame to poor Nolan. He occasionally availed of the permission the great man had given him to write to him. The other boys in the garrison sneered at him because he sacrificed in this unrequited affection for a politician the time which they devoted to monogambela, sledge and high-low-jack. Bourbon, euchre and poker were still unknown. But one day Nolan had his revenge. This time Burr came down the river not as an attorney seeking a place for his office, but as a disguised conqueror. It was rumored that he had an army behind him and an empire before him. It was a great day—his arrival—to poor Nolan. Burr had not been at the fort an hour before he sent for him. That evening he asked Nolan to take him out in his skiff to show him a cane-brake or a cottonwood tree, as he said—really to seduce him—and by the time the sail was over Nolan was enlisted body and soul. From that time, though he did not yet know it, he lived as "a man without a country."

What Burr meant to do I know no more than you, dear reader. It is none of our business just now. Only when the grand catastrophe came some of the lesser fry in that distant Mississippi valley to while away the monotony of the summer at Fort Adams got up for spectacles a string of court martials on the officers there. One and another of the colonels and majors were tried, and, to fill out the list, little Nolan, against whom, heaven knows, there was evidence enough—that he was sick of the service, had been willing to be false to it and would have obeyed any order to march anywhere with any one who would follow him had the order only been signed, "By command of His Exc. A. Burr." The courts dragged on. The big dies escaped—rightly for all I know. Nolan was proved guilty enough as I say, yet you and I would never have heard of him, reader, but that, when the president of the court asked him at the close whether he wished to say anything to show that he had always been faithful to the United States he cried out in a fit of frenzy:

"—The United States! I wish I may never hear of the United States again!"

I suppose he did not know how the words shocked old Colonel Morgan, who was holding the court. Nolan had grown up in the west of those days in the midst of "Spanish plot," "Oriens plot" and all the rest. He had been educated on a plantation where the finest company was a Spanish officer or a French merchant from Orleans. His education, such as it was, had been perfected in commercial expeditions to Vera Cruz and I think he told me his father once hired an Englishman to be a private tutor for a winter on the plantation. He had spent half his youth with an older brother hunting horses in Texas, and, in a word, to him "United States" was scarcely a reality. Yet he had been fed by "United States" for all the years since he had been in the army. He had sworn on his faith as a Christian to be true to "United States." It was "United States" which gave him the uniform he wore and the sword by his side. I do not excuse Nolan. I only explain to the reader why he damned his country and wished he might never hear her name again.

He never did hear her name but once again. From that moment, Sept. 23, 1807, till the day he died, May 11, 1808, he never heard her name again. For that half century and more he was a man without a country.

Old Morgan, as I said, was terribly shocked. He called the court into his private room and returned in fifteen minutes with a face like a sheet, to say:

"Prisoner, hear the sentence of the court. The court decides, subject to the approval of the president, that you never hear the name of the United States again."

Nolan laughed. But nobody else laughed. Old Morgan was too solemn, and the whole room was hushed dead as night for a minute. Even Nolan lost his swagger in a moment. Then Morgan added: "Mr. Marshal, take the prisoner to Orleans in an armed boat and deliver him to the naval commander there."

The marshal gave his orders, and the prisoner was taken out of court. "Mr. Marshal," continued old Morgan, "see that no one mentions the United States to the prisoner. Mr. Marshal, make my respects to Lieutenant Mitchell at Orleans and request him to order that no one shall mention the United States to the prisoner while he is on board ship. You will receive your written orders from the officer on duty here this evening. The court is adjourned without day."

I have always supposed that Colonel Morgan himself took the proceedings of the court to Washington city and explained them to Mr. Jefferson. Certain it is that the president approved them—certain, that is, if I may believe the men who say they have seen his signature. Before the Nautilus got round from New Orleans to the northern Atlantic coast with the prisoner on board the sentence had been approved, and he was a man without a country.

When I was second officer of the Intrepid some thirty years after I saw the original paper of instructions:

Washington (with the date, which must have been late in 1807).

Sir—You will receive from Mr. Lt. Nettle the person of Philip Nolan, late a lieutenant in the United States army.

This person on his trial by court martial expressed with an oath the wish that he might never hear of the United States again.

The court sentenced him to have his wish fulfilled.

For the present the execution of the order is intrusted by the president to this department.

You will take the prisoner on board your ship and keep him there with such precautions as shall prevent his escape.

You will provide him with such quarters, ration and clothing as would be proper for an officer of his late rank if he were a passenger on your vessel on the business of his government.

The gentlemen on board will make any arrangements agreeable to themselves regarding his society. He is to be exposed to no indignity of any kind, nor is he ever unnecessarily to be reminded that he is a prisoner.

But under no circumstances is he ever to hear of his country or to see any information regarding it, and you will especially caution all the officers under your command to take care that, in the various indulgences which may be granted, this rule, in which his punishment is involved, shall not be broken.

It is the intention of the government that he shall never again see the country which he has disowned. Before the end of your cruise you will receive orders which will give effect to this intention. Respy yours,

V. SOUTHWARD,

For the Secretary of the Navy.

I suppose the commander of the Levant has it today as his authority for keeping this man in his mild custody.

The rule adopted on board the ships on which I have met "The Man Without a Country" was, I think, transmitted from the beginning. No mess liked to have him permanently, because his presence cut off all talk of home or of the prospect of return, of politics or letters, of peace or of war—cut off more than half the talk men like to have at sea. But it was always thought too hard that he should never meet the rest of us, except to touch hats, and we finally sank into one system. He was not permitted to talk with the men unless an officer was by. With officers he had unrestrained intercourse, as far as they and he chose. But he grew shy, though he had favorites. I was one. Then the captain always asked him to dinner on Monday. Every mess in succession took up the invitation in its turn. According to the size of the ship, you had him at your mess more or less often at dinner. His breakfast he ate in his own stateroom—he always had a stateroom—which was where a sentinel or somebody on the watch could see the door. And whatever else he ate or drank he ate or drank alone. Sometimes, when the marines or sailors had any special jollification, they were permitted to invite "Plain Buttons," as they called him. They called him "Plain Buttons" because, while he always chose to wear a regulation army uniform, he was not permitted to wear the army button, for the reason that it bore either the initials or the insignia of the country he had disowned.

I remember soon after I joined the navy. Some one told the system which was adopted from the first about his books and other reading. As he was almost never permitted to go on shore, even though the vessel lay in port for months, his time at the best hung heavy, and everybody was permitted to lend him books if they were not published in America and made no allusion to it.

He had no answer to the foreign papers that came into the ship sooner or later, only somebody must go over them first and cut out any advertisement or stray paragraph that alluded to America. Phillips told me a story of something which happened at the Cape of Good Hope on Nolan's first voyage, and it is the only thing I ever knew of that voyage. Phillips had known of that voyage. Phillips had borrowed a lot of English books from an officer, which in those days, as in these, was quite a windfall. Among them, as the devil would order, was the "Lay of the Last Minstrel,"

which they had all of them heard of, but which most of them had never seen. I think it could not have been published long. Well, nobody thought there could be any risk of anything national in that, so Nolan was permitted to join the circle one afternoon when a lot of them sat on deck smoking and reading aloud. Nolan took the book and read to the others, and he read very well, as I know. Nobody in the circle knew a line of the poem, only it was all magic and border chivalry and was 10,000 years ago. Poor Nolan read steadily through the fifth canto, stopped a minute and drank something and then began, without a thought of what was coming:

"Breathes there the man with soul so dead Who never to himself hath said, 'This is my own, my native land?'"

Then they all saw something was to pay, but he expected to get through, I suppose, turned a little pale, but plunged on:

"Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned As home his footsteps he hath turned From wandering on a foreign strand? If such there breathe, go, mark him well."

By this time the men were all beside themselves, wishing there was any way to make him turn over two pages, but he had not quite presence of mind for that. He gagged a little, colored crimson and staggered on:

"For him no minstrel raptures swell. High though his titles, proud his name, Boundless his wealth as wish can claim, Despite these titles, power and pelf, The wretch, concentrated all in self!"

And here the poor fellow choked, could not go on, but started up, swung the book into the sea, vanished into his stateroom, "and, by Jove," said Phillips, "we did not see him for two months again. And I had to make up some beggarly story to that English surgeon why I did not return his Walter Scott to him."

That story shows about the time when Nolan's braggadocho must have broken down. At first they said he took a very high tone, considered his imprisonment a mere farce, affected to enjoy the voyage, and all that, but Phillips said that after he came out of his stateroom he never was the same man again. He never read aloud again unless it was the Bible or Shakespeare or something else he was sure of. He was always shy afterward when I knew him—very seldom spoke unless he was spoken to, except to a very few friends. He lighted up occasionally, but generally he had the nervous, tired look of a heart wounded man.

Nolan's transfer at sea to the Warren was the first of some twenty such transfers, which brought him sooner or later into half our best vessels, but which kept him all his life at least some hundred miles from the country he had hoped he might never hear of again.

It may have been on that second cruise—it was once when he was up the Mediterranean—that Mrs. Graff, the celebrated southern beauty of those days, danced with him. They had been a long time in the bay of Naples, and the officers were very intimate in the English fleet, and there had been great festivities, and our men thought they must give a great ball on board the ship. They wanted to use Nolan's stateroom for something, and they hated to do it without asking him to the ball, so the captain said they might ask him if they would be responsible that he did not talk with the wrong people, "who would give him intelligence." For ladies they had the family of the American consul, one or two travelers who had ventured so far and a nice bevy of English girls and waitresses, perhaps Lady Hamilton herself.

As the dancing went on, Nolan and our fellows all got at ease, as I said—so much so that it seemed quite natural for him to bow to that splendid Mrs. Graff and say:

"I hope you have not forgotten me, Miss Rutledge. Shall I have the honor of dancing?"

He did it so quickly that Shubrick, who was by him, could not hinder him. She laughed and said:

"I am not Miss Rutledge any longer, Mr. Nolan, but I will dance all the same," just nodded to Shubrick as if to say he must leave Mr. Nolan to her and led him off to the place where the dance was forming.

Nolan thought he had got his chance. He had known her at Philadelphia, and at other places had met her and this was a godsend. He said boldly—a little pale, she said, as she told me the story years after:

"And what do you hear from home, Mrs. Graff?"

And that splendid creature looked through him. Jove! how she must have looked through him! "Home!" Mr. Nolan!!! I thought you were the man who never wanted to hear of home again!" And she walked directly up the deck to her husband and left poor Nolan alone, as he always was. He did not dance again.

A happier story than either of these I have told is of the war. In one of the great frigates duels with the English, in which the navy was really baptized, it happened that a round shot from the enemy entered one of our ports square and took right down the officer of the gun himself and almost every man of the gun's crew. As the surgeon's people were carrying off the bodies there appeared Nolan in his shirt sleeves, with the rammer in his hand, and, just as if he had been the officer, told them off with authority who should go to the cockpit with the wounded men, who should stay with him, perfectly cheeky and with that way which makes men feel sure all is right and is going to be right. And he finished loading the gun with his own hands, aimed it and bade the men fire. And there he stayed, captain of that gun, keeping those fellows in spirits till the enemy struck. The captain walked forward by way of encouraging the men, and Nolan touched his hat and said:

A priest was called upon to pray over the barren fields of his parishioners. He passed from one inclosure to another, and pronounced his benediction until he came to a most unpromising case. He surveyed the sterile acres in despair. "Ah!" said he, "brethren—no use to pray here—this needs fertilizing."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Ancient Cult of the Flycatcher.
Beelzebub was the fly god of Ekron (referred to in 1 Kings 1:2, 3, 4 and 10). The great god Baal was sometimes worshipped as the "lord of the fly," as he who drives off the flies. The flies were then and are now man's worst enemies in Palestine and Egypt. We remember well how we had to be continually fighting them off with fans when we were traveling in those lands. The flies settled on the eyes of the children and literally sucked out their eyesight.—Christian Herald.

Nourishing Drink.

If you oversleep and the good man of the house does not have time to eat his breakfast, make him a generous cup of coffee and add to it a beaten egg and plenty of cream. He can drink this in one minute and will scarcely miss his breakfast. People often have egg drinks at soda fountains, but seldom think of preparing them at home.

Depends on Circumstances.

It is bad luck to hear a dog bark at night. This superstition has been found to depend on circumstances; it is a matter of whose dog. If it's the dog next door, the best thing to use is a flatiron; but a good aim is even more valuable.

Height of Meanness.

Joseph W. Folk.

Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel for the interstate commerce commission in the New Haven probe in Washington, is determined that the "sick" directors of the road who have been too feeble to take the witness stand in the hearings thus far shall be made to testify. He charges that their illness is only a quaking about the knees which sometimes comes when financiers are asked to take the witness stand. The suffering directors are William Rockefeller, Samuel C. Morehouse, George MacCullough Miller, Devere Warner and Morton F. Plant.

HAS PLAN TO SHAME VICE RESORT OWNERS

Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones.

Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, the noted Chicago divine, has a plan for shaming the owners of evil resorts. "A brass door plate with the name of the owner on it would fix the responsibility for a building which is rented for saloon and other immoral purposes," says Dr. Jones. He declares that a large percentage of the buildings for immoral uses in Chicago are owned by widows, some of whom are socially prominent.

The Evening Chit-Chat

TRANSLATING MONEY.

A MAN who was about to start on a journey across the continent was taking leave of his four-year-old daughter. He told her he was to be gone a long, long time. She asked him if he would be back before dinner, and he said no. Before supper? No. She looked grave and fishing thoughtfully in her apron pocket brought out a penny. "Take this," she said, "and buy yourself something to eat. And," she added a moment later, "if there's anything left you may buy me a doll."

The recipient of the gift wore the penny on his watch-fob through his journey. I suspect from what he says that there will be enough left to buy a very handsome doll.

Such is a child's idea of the value of money! Of course, one would not expect or want any more of an adorable baby like that, but it seems to me that many older children have just as vague notions on the subject.

Nor do I mean children in wealthy families alone. It is surprising to see how much money children of the middle class and even poor families have to spend on incidentals.

The best way to teach a child to appreciate the value of money is to let him earn his spending money. But, of course, that is not always practicable. Besides, what is the use, we growups think, of earning money if we cannot spend it on those whom we love best and make their paths a little easier than our own were.

Another way to impress upon a child the value of money is to teach him to translate it into terms of pleasure or possession. For instance, ten cents or a dollar may mean little to a child who has never earned money (and indeed to many older people who have).

But translate these sums into a visit to a moving picture show and a new toy and they have more meaning.

Get your children into the habit of visualizing money in this way and you will give them a much better sense of its value.

When I reached the age when I was always begging for "just a penny" my mother one day answered me, "Don't say just a penny. They will buy the vegetable that makes our bread light, or the postage stamp that carries your letter across the country to grandmother." This realization of the power gave me a new respect for "just a penny."

Now, I think are more careless about the spending of little moneys than when the nickel which he so negligently squandered took a dollar a year block. It was a new point of view to him, and I think he has been more careful about money since then.

How silly! As if it were the money itself, except a miser, who only reasons such a remark is possible if we do not associate the two closely enough. Get the habit of visualizing money, and translating it into terms of what it will buy, and you will use money with more respect and intelligence.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen. I am not half as happy as I used to be. I don't want to hear any more of any kind, and don't like to see my girl friends have fun and I don't enjoy myself any place. I love him, but I seem like my way is getting darker instead of lighter. Please tell me what to do.

(1) Everything worries me till I don't enjoy myself at all and I am so lonely. Tell me something to do so I could have a good time.

(2) I don't like reading at all.

(3) How can you keep a boy from kissing you? And should you let him kiss you goodnight?

(4) Am I too young to keep steady company and go buggy riding in the evening? What should you do with a boy that would kiss you a half dozen times the first evening he was with you and you couldn't help it?

LONESOME.

(1) You are at an age when most girls feel just like you do. It is a physical change that is taking place in you. You will get over it, my dear, and be happier than ever. So don't let any sleep worrying.

(2) I am sorry you don't like to read. You would be a better woman and understand yourself a great deal better if you would read good books. Now, remember this, my dear, you can't really have a good time unless you try to make others have a good time. Try to make other people happy. Other people have real troubles. Can't you make the way lighter for them? You'll be surprised how much it would help you if you did.

(3) Don't let him have a chance. A boy can't kiss a girl, even by force, if she doesn't let him near her. It is wrong to kiss good-night unless you are engaged to marry him.

(4) I'd turn him down so hard he'd ache all over, and wouldn't try it again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I can wear blue much better than any other color. Would a blue silk more coat three-quarter length, be in style the latter part of the summer?

(2) Will satin slippers be worn? (3) Will the large Panama hats be worn much this summer a little later on?

(4) When visiting in a town where you have never been before should a girl speak first to a young man when meeting him after she has had an introduction to him? E. D. W.

(1) I think so.

(2) Yes. But they are not suitable for the street.

(3) Boys people will wear large hats when the warm days come. However, there is not much indication yet that they will really be fashionable.

(4) Yes; recognize him first. It is expected of you, as if you do not the young man has a right to think you do not care to continue the acquaintance.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it correct to send invitations out of town to friends when you are going to graduate from grammar school?

(2) If correct, how should you write them? B.M.M.A.

(1) Yes; they will probably be pleased to get the invitation, even if they cannot come.

(2) Send them the same invitation that is sent to other. That you would be pleased to have them attend your graduation from — school, exercises to be held (give date) at (give place).

HOW TO USE CHEAPER CUTS OF MEAT.

To make casserole or Italian hash boil one-fourth pound of macaroni, drain and put into a buttered casserole, add a little butter and grated cheese. Push the macaroni to the sides of the dish and fill the center with chopped meat seasoned to suit the taste of the family. A little sausage gives a good flavor to this dish. Place in the oven until hot throughout and serve.

A very good modification of this is made by using raw instead of cooked meat. For this one-half pound of round steak is sufficient for a family of six. This should be cut into small pieces, browned and cooked until tender in water with the onions and other seasonings. An hour before the cooking is complete, add one-half can of tomatoes. Before serving, the meat may be mixed with the sauce, and the whole is poured over the macaroni.

The connective tissue of meat dissolves in vinegar; hence this acid is often used in preparing tough meat.

To prepare sour beef, take a piece of beef from the rump or the lower round, cover with vinegar or with a half-and-half mixture of vinegar and water, add sliced onion, bay leaves, and a few mixed whole spices and salt. Allow to stand a week in winter or three or four days in summer; turn once a day and keep covered. When ready to cook, brown the meat in fat, using an enameled iron pan, strain the liquid over it and cook until tender; thicken the gravy with flour or ginger snaps (which may be broken up first), strain it, and pour over the sliced meat. Some cooks add cream.

Sour beefsteak is made by cooking round steak in water in which there is a little vinegar, or if the time is sufficient, it may be soaked for a few hours in vinegar and water and then cooked in a casserole or in some similar way.

While pounding meat serves to make it more tender by breaking down the tissues, it has the disadvantage of being likely to drive out the juices and with them the flavor. A way to escape this difficulty is to pound flour into the meat, thus catching and retaining the juice in the flour. To make farmer stew, pound flour into both sides of a round steak, using as much as the meat will take up. This may be done with a meat pounder or with the edge of a heavy plate. Fry in drippings, butter, or other fat in a Scotch bowl, or if more convenient in an ordinary iron kettle or a frying pan; then add water enough to cover it. Cover the dish very tightly so that the steam can not escape and allow the meat to simmer for two hours or until it is tender. One advantage of this dish is that ordinarily it is ready to serve when the meat is done as the gravy is already thickened. However, if a large amount of fat is used in the frying, the gravy may not be thick enough and must be blended with flour.

Cure for Chapped Hands.
To one part carbolic acid add two parts pure glycerin, diluting this mixture with its bulk in weak cider-vinegar. Rub on the hands whenever you wash them and while still wet. Rose-water, if preferred, may be used for diluting this mixture, instead of vinegar. Be sure to tell your druggist for what purpose you want the carbolic, and get the right strength.

Bread Stuffing for Fish.
Soak about half a pound of stale bread in water. When soft press out the water, add a very little chopped suet, pepper and salt, a large tablespoonful of onion minced and fried, and if liked a little minced parsley. Cook slightly and after removing from the fire add a beaten egg.

A very pretty salad is made by stuffing boiled beets. Boil the beets and scoop out the centers and put into spiced vinegar to stand over night. Drain and fill with seasoned peas, garnish with a dab of boiled or mayonnaise dressing. To economize in butter serve the bread in the form of sandwiches. It is said that the average American wastes more butter on his plate than the French woman uses in the preparation of three meals. By the way, for those who are anxious to lose in weight, cut down on the butter and notice a most gratifying reduction in the course of a week.

Apple Pancakes.—Take a cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, add three teaspoonfuls of sugar, half a cupful of milk and two eggs. Mix all together and add one cupful of apples, ground through a meat chopper. Fry like pancakes. Serve with butter and sugar.

Beets Italian Style.—Bake a half dozen beets until tender; peel and chop fine. Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and add one small onion finely sliced. Cook until yellow, then add four tablespoonfuls of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar and a few dashes of paprika, two cupfuls of rich milk, and when smooth add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and pour over the beets. Serve hot.

Prune Puff.—Put two cupfuls of cooked prunes in a buttered baking dish and pour over a batter made from three cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter and two beaten eggs. Bake until the crust is a golden brown. Serve with softened butter to which sugar and the beaten white of an egg has been added.

Rhubarb Raisin Pie.—One pound of diced rhubarb, one-third of a cupful of raisins, a cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of butter and a fourth of a teaspoonful each of salt and nutmeg. Put a layer of flour and sugar in the bottom of the paste-lined pan, fill in with a layer of rhubarb, sprinkle with raisins, then season with salt and nutmeg, bits of butter until all are used. Cover with a crust and bake.

Women Worth While

MRS. GEORGE W. FAIRCHILD.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.

Those women who count change on their fingers and to whom a market page and a time table are equally unintelligible, would look with awe and admiration not unmixed with envy on Mrs. George W. Fairchild, wife of Representative Fairchild of New York.

Mrs. Fairchild has a business ability which, if she had been a man, would probably have made her a captain of finance.

With characteristic modesty she overlooks this fact whenever she is asked for information regarding herself, but the truth concerning her may always be had upon good authority. This authority is her husband. Representative Fairchild gives her credit in a large measure for his success as a business man. Mrs. Fairchild having years been familiar with every detail of her husband's large business interests and having played an important part in their development.

Mr. Fairchild advises and consults with her on all business matters and does not hesitate to say that he values her sagacity and her judgment as highly as those of any man of his acquaintance.

Before her marriage Mrs. Fairchild was Josephine Mills Sherman, niece of the late Joseph C. Mills of New York city. She comes of a family which has produced some notably efficient persons, the late D. O. Mills and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid being members of the same family.

Executive and business ability in a woman are usually arguments for woman suffrage. Yet with true womanly inconsistency, Mrs. Fairchild is anti-suffrage in her sympathies. She believes a woman's influence will in nowise be strengthened by the right of franchise, even with the limitations implied in the old-fashioned phrase, is full of undeveloped opportunities for all womankind.

Representative and Mrs. Fairchild have in Oneonta, New York, one of the handsomest homes in the section of the state. Mrs. Fairchild, when there, indulges much in her favorite recreation of driving. Notwithstanding her activity in the social life of Washington season she is always glad to return to Oneonta for a week or more to take advantage of the fine sleighing which is usually to be had there during the winter. She is fond of horses and keeps some fine ones at Oneonta.

The Fairchilds have one child, a son, named Sherman Mills, who is receiving his education on a ranch school in Arizona.

Mrs. Fairchild, though not to any great extent a clubwoman, is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She also belongs to the Congressional club of Washington.

Drain and fill with seasoned peas, garnish with a dab of boiled or mayonnaise dressing. To economize in butter serve the bread in the form of sandwiches. It is said that the average American wastes more butter on his plate than the French woman uses in the preparation of three meals. By the way, for those who are anxious to lose in weight, cut down on the butter and notice a most gratifying reduction in the course of a week.

Apple Pancakes.—Take a cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, add three teaspoonfuls of sugar, half a cupful of milk and two eggs. Mix all together and add one cupful of apples, ground through a meat chopper. Fry like pancakes. Serve with butter and sugar.

Beets Italian Style.—Bake a half dozen beets until tender; peel and chop fine. Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and add one small onion finely sliced. Cook until yellow, then add four tablespoonfuls of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar and a few dashes of paprika, two cupfuls of rich milk, and when smooth add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and pour over the beets. Serve hot.

Prune Puff.—Put two cupfuls of cooked prunes in a buttered baking dish and pour over a batter made from three cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter and two beaten eggs. Bake until the crust is a golden brown. Serve with softened butter to which sugar and the beaten white of an egg has been added.

Rhubarb Raisin Pie.—One pound of diced rhubarb, one-third of a cupful of raisins, a cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of butter and a fourth of a teaspoonful each of salt and nutmeg. Put a layer of flour and sugar in the bottom of the paste-lined pan, fill in with a layer of rhubarb, sprinkle with raisins, then season with salt and nutmeg, bits of butter until all are used. Cover with a crust and bake.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
Should the inkstand be accidentally upset on the tablecloth or carpet, pour a little cold water over it at once. The ink will float on the water and when the cloth or carpet is rubbed dry no stain will show.

To clean painted walls dissolve two ounces of borax in two quarts of water. Add one tablespoonful of ammonia. Use half of this quantity to each bucket of water and do not use any soap. After washing the walls with this, rub them with clean cloths until dry.

To clear a house of beetles put one pound of powdered borax into a tin with a perforated lid. Dust the borax lightly over the floor or the walls and in the cupboards, in fact every place where the pests are found. They will soon disappear.

Lettuce with a layer of horseradish on either side placed well buttered bread makes an excellent sandwich.

THE TABLE.
Heavenly Hash.—Strain the juice from one pint of cherries or red berries and place in a sauce dish with alternate layers of sliced bananas, sprinkling over each layer one tablespoonful of pulverized sugar. Make a custard with one pint of milk, three eggs, saving out the whites of two; one-half cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and a pinch of salt. When cold pour the custard over the fruit, covering with the whites of the eggs well beaten with one-half cupful of sugar.

Sunshine Cake.—Whites of seven eggs, yolks of five, one cupful of fine granulated sugar, one scant cupful of flour, measured after sifting five times; one-quarter teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one teaspoonful of orange extract. Beat the yolks till thick and set aside. Now add a pinch of salt and the cream of tartar to the whites and beat till very stiff; add the sugar, beat thoroughly then add the flavoring and beaten yolks, beat lightly and carefully, stir in the flour. Bake in a tin pan in a moderate oven from forty to fifty minutes. Invert the pan to cool.

Lemon Cake.—One cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar, seven eggs, one and one-half pints of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of extract of lemon. Rub to a light cream the butter and the sugar; add the eggs, two at a time, beating five minutes after each addition; add the flour, sifting into it the powder, and the extract; mix into a medium batter, bake in a buttered tin, in a moderate oven, forty minutes.

Gingerbread.—One cupful of brown sugar and three tablespoonfuls of butter stirred to a cream, add one cupful of New Orleans molasses, two eggs, mix well; stir dry two teaspoonfuls of baking powder in two and one-half cupfuls of flour. Put in ginger or spice to taste, bake in one loaf one hour.

Rice Croquettes.—Put one-quarter of a pound of rice, one pint of milk, three tablespoonfuls of finely sifted sugar, one small piece of butter and the thin rind of a lemon into a sauce pan. Any other flavoring may be used if preferred. Simmer gently until the rice is tender and the milk absorbed. It must be boiled until thick and dry, or it will be difficult to mold into croquettes. Beat it thoroughly for three or four minutes, then turn it out, and when it is cold and stiff form it into small balls, dip these in eggs, sprinkle a few bread crumbs over them and fry them in clarified fat till they are light and equally browned. Put them on a piece of clean blotting paper to drain the fat from them and serve them piled high on the dish.

Johnny Cakes.—One egg, one cupful of buttermilk or sour milk, one tablespoonful of shortening, one level teaspoonful of soda, one saltspoonful of salt, two cupfuls of cornmeal, one cupful of flour, one-half cupful of sugar. Bake from twenty minutes to half an hour.

Piles Man's Delusion.
Every time a spinster looks at a man who has just been led to the altar by a widow, she says to herself: "How easily you poor men are fooled!"—Exchange.

DON'T LET PERSPIRATION SPOIL YOUR SUMMER.
Wonderful casco essence gives perfect freedom from that hot weather joy-killer, perspiration. Casco is a clear odorless liquid that penetrates and dries instantly—no greasy salve, no bothersome powder that scatters, sizzles and shows.

Casco essence is the only way to deodorize perspiration. It is utterly senseless to remove perspiration from the skin and then put on garments filled with the odor. Casco does not stain. Use it freely on anything that water will not harm.

Save on needless cleaner's bills. Stop ruining dainty waists with too much washing.

Get casco powder from your druggist, have him dissolve it to make a full half pint of the essence. Tonight you can prove that all these claims are true. We refund the cost if casco does not please. C. A. Smith & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Beloit, Wisconsin.

Do It! When my scalp is itchy I use a scalp and hair tonic which I made at home for little cost by adding 1 ounce quinine (get from your drug store) to 1 pint alcohol, then put in 2 pints water. This gives you a full pint of a very superior tonic. Rubbing a little into the scalp twice a week quickly and permanently cures itching, dandruff, eczema, and corrects faulty condition of the scalp. The quinine use of quinine tonic restores hair color and restores an abundant, healthy hair and restores an abundant, beautiful growth.

Worried? Here is a harmless and highly satisfactory way to banish superfluous hairs. Make a paste with a little powdered salicylic acid and water. Spread on the hairy surface and in two or three minutes wash off with soap and water. It will be left smooth and hairless. Have a package of salicylic acid and you can keep your skin free from any ugly hairs.

Freemans: When your eyes smart and ache, try this harmless and very effective remedy. Into 1 pint water put one ounce crystals. Dropping 2 or 3 drops of this in each eye relieves smart, strain or ache. It also strengthens tired eyes and restores the sparkling and brilliant expression to dull, listless eyes.

Misericord: Here is a simple formula for relief from over-fatness and a genuine skin beautifier. Into 1½ pints hot water dissolve 3 ounces paraffin. Take of this 1 tablespoonful 3 times a day. This paraffin treatment is gradual and positive in its action and does not require dieting or vigorous exercising. When the skin is sufficiently reduced the figure will be plump and the skin smooth and clear.

Shad: Here is a very fine lotion for cleansing and beautifying the skin. Dissolve 4 ounces spiramin (from your druggist) in ½ pint witch hazel or hot water and add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply to face, neck and arms and rub lightly until it vanishes. This is invisible and imparts an exquisite tint and velvety smoothness to the skin. The use of this spiramin lotion will remove the oily, yellow, unhealthy color and add a touch of refined elegance to the dullest complexion.

Mrs. A. T. B.: No woman who prizes her hair will use soap, which because of its very nature, makes the hair streaky, brittle and unmanageable. Try this—just dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and rub briskly as you pour it on the hair and scalp. This makes an abundance of rich, creamy suds which is very soothing to tender, itchy scalps. Rinsing leaves the scalp immaculately clean, and each strand of hair will be soft, shiny and full of health. Certain shampoos are splendid for correcting unnatural conditions—excessive oiliness, dryness or profuse dandruff.

Julia: The pimply, blotchy condition of your skin is due to accumulated poisons. Take the following old-fashioned blood-cleanser and both blemishes and this unsightliness will vanish: Into ½ pint alcohol put 1 ounce karoene (which you get from the drug store) and ½ cupful sugar. Boil in water to make a quart. A teaspoonful 3 times a day is the dose. This tonic acts gently on the organs of elimination and thus increases your appetite and assists you to get the full strengthening value of your food and tones the entire system and fortifies it against disease.

Mrs. Jack: Wrinkles and fine lines are easily removed with almond cream-jelly, prepared as follows: Into ½ pint water put 1 ounce almond oil and 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Cleanse the skin and dry thoroughly before using. For wrinkles, apply freely and massage gently the long way of the creases. This treatment stimulates the stunted tissues and they soon resume their normal condition. When this is done the wrinkles or lines will have vanished. As a skin cleanser and complexion rejuvenator an almond cream-jelly is not equalled, and its use not only restores the refined loveliness of youth, but protects it against the ravages of time.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM AT MILTON COLLEGE

Excellent Addresses Will Be Given by Eminent Speakers at Commencement Exercises.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milton, June 11.—Those who have ever attended commencement exercises at Milton college know that the addresses and other events are worth
going farther than to Milton to attend them. This year they are unusually attractive.

There is the address before the Christian associations Friday evening.
Professor Harbour of the college
Professor Harbour goes to the heart
of things more than most speakers.
The fact that he was the unanimous choice of the Christian associations as their annual speaker over against any one from afar is proof of his popularity.

The thoughtful baccalaureate sermon by President Daland, Sunday evening, will be one of the strongest addresses of the week. Up to the present President Daland has never disappointed a congregation at this service.
They always say, too, that the last
was the best.

The address of Dr. Kerr Boyce
Tupper, D. D., LL. D., of Philadelphia
on "Optimism" will be without doubt
one of the most brilliant addresses
ever presented at an occasion of this kind. It will be given at the graduating exercises of the Academy of Milton college Monday evening in the auditorium gymnasium. Dr. Tupper is one of the best known speakers of the Baptist denomination, and though an eastern man, his name is almost a household word even in the middle west.

The play by the students Tuesday
evening will be "Much Ado About Nothing," and will make the twelfth annual presentation of a play of Shakespeare at commencement time.
Everybody speaks well of the performance.

The concert Wednesday evening
will be by the Chicago concert trio, piano, violin and piano. The combination is unusually strong and a fine program has been arranged.

The commencement exercises will take place at ten o'clock Thursday morning in the auditorium. Mr. William C. King of Springfield, Mass., will deliver the address. He will also receive the degree of doctor of letters from the college. Following the exercises will be the annual luncheon. In the afternoon there will be a meeting
of alumni and friends of the college,
and in the evening the president's reception will be held in the gymnasium, which everybody is invited.

BIG EQUITY MEETING CALLED AT MILTON

Important Gathering of Farmers and Business Men Will Be Held
on June 25.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milton, June 11.—The big equity
mass meeting under the auspices of the Milton Equity Advancement Association, will be held at the college auditorium in Milton Thursday evening, June 25. Already more than fifty leading farmers, business men and educators have applied for membership in the organization, and a deep interest is shown in this movement in every school district of northeastern Rock county and adjoining parts of other counties. Among the speakers will be the ablest and best posted
men to be found in the northwest,
and no pains will be spared to make
this meeting the biggest and most successful farmers' meeting ever held in this part of the state. The purpose of the big meeting will be to advance
the agricultural, business, educational and social development of the entire rural community of which Milton and Milton Junction form the natural center.

SETH FISHER FARM HAS CHANGED HANDS

William J. and Frank P. Croak Purchase Property for Approximately $35,000.

One of the largest transfers of land in Rock county within the past week was closed recently when William J. Croak and Frank P. Croak became owners of the old Seth Fisher
farm in the town of Center, paying approximately $35,000 for the property. This farm is one of the best in the county and contains 270 acres, so
the price per acre was in the neighborhood of $130. John E. Kennedy handled the deal for the owners, Mrs. Norris and Miss Jennie Fisher of Chicago, daughters of the late Seth Fisher. It is understood that the Croaks plan to stock the farm with fine blooded cattle and manage its themselves, using the surplus
of feed they have at their brewery
for fattening purposes for a large drove of hogs that they will place on the property immediately. It is conveniently located for shipping facilities and has a goodly number of buildings on it.

Idleness.
Idleness is only the refuge of weak
minds and the holiday of fools.—Lord Chesford.

SPECIAL CHILDREN'S DAY EXERCISES AT M. E. CHURCH

On Sunday, June 14th, special children's day exercises will be held at the Carell M. E. church. At the morning service at ten-thirty o'clock
the baptizing ceremonies will be held.
At the evening service exercises will be held by the members of the Sunday school.

PREPARING FOR THE BIGGEST OF CROWDS

Indications Point to Fact That Janesville Will Be Swamped With Visitors July Fourth.

That the revival of the famous None
Such circus has met with the approval of citizens generally and former residents, is evidenced by the enthusiasm displayed. Instead of being merely a Fourth celebration, it has developed into a Home Coming as well for former residents and people who are located so that they can return to once more witness the triumph of Colonel None Such and another genuine old-fashioned good time.

The supply of red fire cracker possibly would celebrate, has done, its work. There is plenty more left and more will be distributed everywhere to the various stores. However,
there may be some who will want
them in quantities and if such be the case, they are invited to call at the Gazette office, where there is an im-
pound number to meet all demands.

By the last of next week the bill
posting brigade will have finished its work and the country for a wide radius
will have been plastered with big announcements of the coming big time in Janesville. This squadron
will travel by auto, Fred Blakely,
who has charge of this end of the advertising, has been busy mapping out having mapped out routes that will cover practically all of southern Wisconsin.

Consistent there is to be an adjourned
meeting of the general committee of the Gazette office, at which details
of the day's program will be completed and a full attendance is desired. The fact is most important that all be present to make certain that all need immediate attention.
The free vaudeville acts are the best
that money can obtain and from present exhibitors have made excellent exhibits. These will be given on platforms in various parts of the city.

Chairman Edward Amerphol is the most likely to hear from more persons who will take part in the grand parade, under the general direction of Colonel None Such. While many stellar features have already been decided upon, there is still room for many more and all who wish to take part
are invited to hand their names to the members of the committee in charge
of this feature, Edward Amerphol,
H. H. Bliss, Howard Clithero,
Peter J. Cunningham and J. L. Calver.

Considerable interest is being displayed in the fact that Congressman H. A. Cooper will be the orator of the leaders of the minority in congress, a member of the committee
on foreign relations and taking an important part in the deliberations
of both the president and congress in the present depression. He has also been the house leader in the fight against the toll repeal measure that is just drawing to a close in the senate. An eloquent speaker, his address
in the college park in the morning will be listened to with attention.

General Chairman F. E. Lane asks
that all members of the general committee be present at the meeting to be held this evening at 7 o'clock. He last he will be able to attend for some time, as he leaves for Chicago
and will not return to Janesville until
a few days after the Fourth, the work of supervising with it to a committee of three, Louis Levy, Andrew Reberg and Joseph Connors, in the meantime. The meeting will be called to order at eight o'clock.

STRENUOUS WORK ON THESE SULTRY DAYS

George Hatch at Dancing Masters'
Convention Tells of Long Hours

Dancing is an enjoyment, but when
one starts in at ten in the morning,
keeps it up until twelve, then goes at
it again at two until six and after two hours rest takes the job from eight until ten-thirty, it is going some. This is what George Hatch is doing at the annual convention of the dancing masters of the United States and Canada at Cleveland this week. He writes that it is a very great time but that June 5th was the hottest day Cleveland has had in forty years. But we kept right on with our program. One thing
for the dancing public to remember is the "wiggles" is doomed. We are learning some beautiful dances. One step, hesitation waltzes and also the new society dance, "The Tango."
This was brought over direct from Europe by D. G. MacLennan of Edinburgh, Scotland. He says that both himself and Mrs. Hatch are enjoying themselves immensely and that they are located at the Hotel Tavistock
with the Chicago delegation. There are over three hundred delegates
attendance, every state in the union
being represented. The ball room at the Hotel Statler, where the sessions are held, is crowded with hundreds of pounds of cold air forced in ever few minutes. The next convention will be held in San Francisco. Mr.
Hatch is on the program for the entertaining evening. When every member must do some stunt and will give a harp solo.

TARIFF MEASURE HAS MANY DIRECT ERRORS

"Psychological Depression" Latest
Explanation of Failure of Wilson Bill.

(By Winfield Jones.)
Washington, D. C., June 11.—"Psychological Depression" is the latest to come out of the White House in explanation of the wailing business of the country, the thousands of men out of work, and the hard times being experienced by the farmers—the direct result of the democratic tariff bill and the blundering and theoretical dreams of the Princeton professor.

The president's explanation that
the present depression of business is merely psychological has brought announced relief to all the thinkers
theorists, sarcastically remarks the New York Sun.

Of course a psychological depression is a much more comforting sort
than a materialistic or realistic depression. It is a disease of the mind and the depression becomes a hump.
We have here a charming application of the theory of the new science of mental healing. The sickness of the commercial body is really in the commercial mind. Business only imagines that its supply of nutrition is weak, and its nerves are shaken and it is unable to develop its accustomed healthy energy. The effects of the tariff are an illusion; the paralysis of the mind is a diseased mental perception; stagnant industry, poverty,
poisoned and unemployment hallo-

Unfortunately the body economic
is not obstinately nervous and depressed. The fact is that the tariff
that imagination is as bad as reality.
It holds true of groups as well as units.
When a man thinks he is sick he is sick. It is found between the sheets
of a newspaper that when a business community becomes depressed
that it has a cure and jaundice and rickets it is pretty sure to act as if it had contracted these maladies, even though the optimistic healer may scorn at such weak yielding to mere mental impressions.

It is not infrequently happens in the treatment of the individual that a reduction of the mind and removal of anxiety restores tone to the mind and restores the body in ridding itself of the psychological symptoms, whether real or imaginary. If the president is so certain of the malady of business today is psychological, would it not be a good idea to try the rest cure. Most likely he would find astonishing improvement if he should promptly reduce the causes of psychological disturbance and give his patient a chance to recover mental and nervous tone.

President Wilson declares that "the present depression of business" is merely psychological.
In other words, the hesitation of industry and commerce and the halting of business confidence, at a time
when the country's material condition is in a promising prosperity, is due to a state of mind.

Who is responsible for this state
of mind which has chilled the check-ed American enterprise in a season
of abundant money and bumper crops?

Some of the most experienced democratic leaders in congress have urged upon the president the unfortunate events which constant radical legislation is bringing upon the country, and which are breathing
space for business readjustment, man-
have upon what should otherwise be good and profitable times for the people generally.

Mr. Wilson's answer was to insist upon a hurried completion of a party program before the congressional elections.

The president says in explaining
the present general depression that
"there is no material condition or substantial reason why the business of the country should not be in the most prosperous and expanding condition. The only thing that is more dangerous for business than uncertainty
is who and what has produced this feeling of uncertainty throughout the country that is so dangerous to business and threatens to inflict widespread suffering in the daily lives of the people at a time of abundant
harvests."

Until the present administration
came into power the foreign trade of this country was increasing by leaps
and bounds, thus falsifying the argument of the democratic free-traders that a foreign trade could not be developed under a protective tariff. They used to say that foreigners would not buy from us unless we bought from them and threw
open our own markets to their unlimited competition.

There was one of those scholastic theories which Mr. Wilson is so fond, and experience has abundantly demonstrated its foolishness. Protection did buy from us under the tariff, and they bought so largely as
to establish an immense volume of trade in our favor. Then a misguided electorate put the democrats in power and a near free-trade tariff was adopted, and, strange to say, ever since it became a policy our exports
have been falling off.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation, and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."

The girl rose to her feet. She put her hands on her brother's shoulders and gazed down into his face.

"Enoch," she said hesitatingly, "I wish you wouldn't. You could help your friend if you would turn over a new leaf yourself."

"We both swore off tonight for good and all, little girl." Wentworth took her hands between his own and looked into her eyes with a resolute look. "I want you to help both of us—Merry and me. The evil of the world was never whispered inside convent walls. You've left a quiet, simple life—for a very different world. There's more mission work waiting you right here than if you had taken the veil."

"Enoch," the girl's face was grave and earnest. "Enoch, nothing would ever make me take the veil. I have only one ambition—I want to go on the stage."

"Good Lord!" cried Wentworth, "I never dreamed of such a future—for you."

"You don't know stage life as I do," he continued seriously. "There are women—and men for that matter—who go into the profession clean skinned, clean souled. They spend their lives in it and come out clean; but there are experiences they never forget."

"Is life as bad as that?" the girl asked simply.

"Life is as bad," her brother answered slowly, "and yet I would as willingly see you go on the stage as into society—I mean fashionable society, as I know it here in New York. A newspaper man sees the under side of life."

"It would not hurt me." The girl tossed back a heavy braid of hair which fell over her shoulder, and knelt at Wentworth's knee.

"I have you always to turn to, big brother," she whispered. She laid her cheek fondly against his hand. "Don't you remember that used to be the only name I had for you? You were so big, so strong, so wise and so old. I used to sit on the gatepost, waiting for you to come home. Don't you remember our Saturday tramps, how we used to play 'I spy' in the orchard, and went bird-nesting, picnicking, and fishing, or playing Indian camp on the island?"

Enoch clasped her hands tightly. "I remember, little Dorry. They were the happiest days in my life."

"Let us get out of the city," cried the girl. Their eyes turned to the sunlit square below. The morning rush of New York life had begun, with its clang of bells and thunder of vehicles.

"Dorcas, I'm off to bed. I haven't shut an eye for 24 hours."

CHAPTER II.

The Measure of a Man.

A week later Wentworth and his sister left town for a vacation. They had discovered an old-fashioned farmhouse on a quiet stretch of shore, and settled down contentedly to a simple, outdoor life. One morning a telegram broke their solitude.

"We have half an hour to catch a train to the city," said Enoch, as he tumbled out of a hammock. "You may drive me to the depot if you wish, Dorcas."

"You're not called back to that hot office," she cried wistfully, "after a vacation of only three days?"

"It isn't the paper, Dorcas; it's Merry. Get into the buggy; I'll tell you about it on our way to the station. You may drive."

He leaned back comfortably in the wide seat. "You like driving, I don't."

"What's the matter with Mr. Merry?" Dorcas asked. "Is he ill?"

"Not that, but he's in danger of killing his career. He's going up the state to a little one-horse town to play leading roles in a ten, twenty, thirty stock company."

"Why does he do that?"

"I guess he's broke. I can't tell until I see him. I'll be back tonight, or tomorrow at the latest. I'll wire you what train. You'll meet me, won't you?"

"Of course," she promised.

Next morning the two men stood on the platform of the smoker on a shore accommodation train, which sauntered from one small station to the next, skirting the water for miles.

Andrew Merry tossed a half-smoked cigar into a swamp beside the track where the thin, green blades of cattails were whipped by the breeze.

"I don't believe I want to mix odors this morning," he said.

"It is great ozone," Wentworth lifted his hat to let the wind cool his jump straight into a part that will bring the heat out of his listeners."

"That's foolish. The public wants just so much versatility. You can't kill off a beloved comedian to resurrect a new emotional actor, no matter how good he may be. People won't stand for it."

"He isn't satisfied." The girl pulled up her line and tossed away a morsel of nibbled bait, covering the hook with a fresh clam.

"Some greedy fish had a square meal off your bait and never got the hook in his gullet. He'll come back for more, then get caught. It's the same way with human beings."

"Philosopher!" laughed Dorcas. She dropped her line again into deep water and waited for her brother's prediction to come true.

Merry had breakfasted before their return. He sat upon the vine-grown piazza, gazing at the sparkle of the ocean, when the two agile figures stepped across his vision.

"Well, Sir Lazy, so you're up!" cried the girl. "You should have been with us to find an appetite. See our fish! Here's a dinner for you!"

"I'm going to turn over a new leaf," said Merry. His eyes were fixed on the girl's glowing face, and for a moment he shared her intense enjoyment of life.

"Will you turn it over tomorrow morning at sunrise?" she demanded.

"Even so soon, most gracious lady." He swept her a stage bow, his soft hat trailing the ground as if it had been a cavalier's cap loaded with plumes.

Matching his grace, the girl turned to him, laughing, with the mock dignity of a queen.

"I command that at early dawn, when the tide goes out, ye hide three to yon flats and dig clams for our savory meal."

"I shall obey, most royal highness," answered Merry solemnly.

"I believe he is waking up," thought Dorcas as she ran upstairs to dress for the noon dinner. "If he does that, I'll believe he has some backbone."

When Dorcas and her brother came down next morning for breakfast, Merry had disappeared.

"I'm glad I'm not your victim," said Wentworth, with a note of sympathy in his voice.

"Enoch," the girl turned to him gravely, "I told you he needed waking up, and this is a good start. It won't hurt him a bit."

"Poor Merry! What a sight!"

They watched him come tramping over the beach. He wore Farmer Hutchins' overalls rolled up to his knees and a flapping cow-breakfast hat. He carried a clam fork and occasionally shifted a heavy basket of clams from one arm to the other.

CHAPTER III.

Cassiopea's Chair.

Dorcas Wentworth stopped on the crest of a cliff and looked down. A few feet below her, on a ledge like a wide shelf, Merry lay watching the waves as they broke against the jagged walls of a narrow cove.

"Day-dreaming, Mr. Merry?" cried the girl.

He sprang to his feet. "Why, I never heard you. Do you wear velvet shoes? Let me help you down." He began to climb the uneven steps.

"The idea of helping me down, after I have made my way alone over these chasms!" She pointed to the wall behind her. Then resting one hand on his shoulder, she leaped past him lightly.

"What a heavenly retreat!"

"Yes," answered Merry, dreamily. "I found it several days ago. I've called it Cassiopea's Chair."

"Who was Cassiopea?"

"I've forgotten. Some satellite creature, I believe. Her name has a restful sound, and this place is restful and lonely."

The girl laughed. "Were you day-dreaming?"

"I suppose so. I was watching these waves. Most of them break without a splash; then once in a while, away out as far as your eye can reach, you see one roll up, gathering force from you can't imagine where, and it comes on tempestuously through a calm sea, to crash against the cliffs. Sometimes it throws its spray up here." He pointed to a wet line on the rock just below them. "Then again, one which promises to be a ripper amounts to nothing when it breaks."

"Yes it is fascinating," she agreed. "Yesterday I spent an hour watching them. It makes me think of people."

"What people?" he demanded, not understanding.

"All sorts. People who never do anything, who saunter through life and are the failures, and the few who live after their work is done."

"Merry," in her intensity the girl addressed him as her brother did, "they make me think of you. You could make a towering big wave of your life. You don't!"

The man turned quickly and looked into her eyes with flushed face. He did not speak.

"I wish—oh, I do wish!—Dorcas' voice was like that of an ardent child. I wish I could rouse you to make the best of yourself. There is so much you could do!"

"Do you really think so?"

"No, I don't think it. I know it. You are two people; one is lazy and indifferent, with just ambition enough to do the work you have to do. You can't help doing it well—you could not do it badly. Then there is the other—a man with vivid imagination, feeling, emotion, and ability; but it is so hard to wake him up!"

Merry jumped to his feet and stared down into the girl's face. "How did you learn this—about me? Has Enoch laid my soul bare to you?"

"Enoch told me something of your career, that was all. I know you better than he does."

Andrew pulled the soft hat over his eyes and sprawled out on the rock ledge.

Dorcas began with a nervous laugh. "It sounds like—presumption, I know so little of the world, only I have been studying you—"

The woman smiled faintly. "You don't know my husband," she said.
